Welcome to Midsumma Festival 2018

John Caldwell
Midsumma Festival Chair

I am delighted to chair the Midsumma board for the third year in 2018.
As you will see, the 2018 program is an active demonstration of the results of a stellar 2017, under CEO Karen Bryant.

There's more for our youth and families; our Indigenous engagement is on the rise and our credibility in the market is clearly going places with even larger events at Arts Centre Melbourne and the inclusion of top commercial musicals.

An extra special thank you goes to our team and especially our generous volunteers who will contribute so much of their time to support the festival in 2018, including our valuable board and Life Members who are integral in upholding this amazing culture.

I would also like to extend a very big 'thank you' to our sponsors and supporters, who make the festival possible each year.
We are especially grateful to NAB, our principal partner, and are also excited to warmly welcome some great new partners to the festival for 2018. Happy Midsumma!

Martin Foley MP
Minister for Creative Industries and Minister for Equality

For three decades Midsumma has celebrated the creativity and resilience of LGBTI Victoria—with vigour and pride.

Since its inception in 1988, this annual event has grown in size, scope and stature to become Australia's premier LGBTI arts and cultural festival.

Midsumma has carved a strong identity and powerful voice as a champion of diversity, inclusion, creativity and equality. We see it from the moment the opening Carnival takes up residence in Alexandra Gardens, to the thousands who join Pride March in St Kilda, to the diversity of performances, activities and events in venues across Melbourne.

Midsumma is a time that Victoria reveals its rainbow heart. Equality is not negotiable in our state, and celebrations like Midsumma send a clear and powerful message of support and inclusion for all LGBTI Victorians.

The Victorian Government is a proud partner and supporter of Midsumma. See you there.

Robert Doyle AC
Lord Mayor Of Melbourne

The colour and joy of the Midsumma Festival is a summer highlight on the events calendar of the World's Most Liveable City.
This 22 day celebration of Melbourne’s LGBTIQA community includes performance, film, sport and visual arts which will enliven our city and express our inclusive character.

We cherish our reputation as a welcoming and diverse city.

The City of Melbourne encourages equality and respect for everyone in the municipality and has proudly supported Midsumma for the past eight years.

During Midsumma, more than 100,000 people are expected to party at Carnival in Alexandra Gardens. Look out for T-Dance and all the events which bring people together.

I congratulate the organisers and wish you all an enjoyable Midsumma Festival 2018.

Rachel Slade

Executive General Manager, Deposits & Transaction Services and Executive Sponsor Pride@NAB

What a fantastic opportunity for us to come together to celebrate and promote diversity, equality and inclusion.

At NAB, we back the bold who move Australia forward. We are passionate about being responsible and inclusive and are proud to support our LGBTI colleagues and the community. We back our customers and our people, and we will continue to back communities through our community partnerships to ensure they feel supported. Diversity and inclusion is central to NAB’s enduring purpose and culture, and we are intensely proud of our diverse community partnerships. This is why NAB is proud to support Midsumma for the sixth year running. As Principal Partner, I’m delighted to welcome you and to be involved in the 31st Midsumma Festival celebrations.

Our Pride@NAB team are so energised for Midsumma 2018, ready to bring their passion and enthusiasm to this incredible community event. I would like to wish the organisers a successful Midsumma Festival and I look forward to sharing it with you, my family and friends. Happy Midsumma!

Karen Bryant

Chief Executive, Midsumma Festival

I am thrilled to present this program to you, with a multitude of experiences for you to immerse yourself in over the coming summer period. This is your call to action to come together, support and celebrate our showcase of diverse talents!

This year’s program represents the results of so many conversations and meetings with queer communities, as well as late night chats over coffee, wine, meals, more wine. Lots of dreams, lots of hopes.

The coming together of so many wonderful people and ideas. Through nearly 170 events over 22 days we will celebrate our history, our present and our futures.

From diverse communities and diverse thinking arrives this degustation of visual, musical, physical, intellectual and theatrical events for and by communities who live with shared experiences around diverse gender and sexuality.

Thanks to everyone who has helped make this program a reality and especially to the artists and event producers whose passion and inspirational thoughts and ideas line page after page of this guide.

Block out your calendar 14 January to 4 February and dive in – after all who needs sleep?

I look forward to sharing it all with you this summer.

About

Midsumma Festival

Midsumma Festival is Victoria’s premier LGBTQIA+ cultural festival, made for and by communities who live with shared experiences around diverse gender and sexuality.

We are a champion of LGBTQIA+ cultures, conversations and events. We are the intersection between generations, people, ideas, stories and experiences – a focal point for connections and belonging. We create inclusive and safe social spaces. We provide platforms for shared experience in a world which often under-represents us. We value diversity and we embrace difference. We increase our communities’ profiles and amplify the stories that might otherwise not be seen, heard or felt.

Although the primary three-week festival is held in summer each year, Midsumma works year-round to provide artists, social-changers and culture-makers with support and tools to create, present and promote their work.

Midsumma Festival brings a diverse mix of artists, performers, communities and audiences together under a single umbrella for a celebration and innovative presentation of queer arts and culture.

Read on for our diverse festival program, made up of visual arts, theatre, spoken word, cabaret, film, live music, parties, sport, social events and public forums, featuring nearly 170 events in 2018 with involvement by over 500 culture-makers in over 100 different venues across Melbourne and wider Victoria to anticipated audiences of over 200,000.

Acknowledgement of Country

Midsumma acknowledges that Indigenous Australians are the first peoples of these lands. We pay our respects to all Indigenous Australians past and present, and we recognise their continuing spiritual and cultural connection to the land.

Midsumma takes place between High Summer and Late Summer according to the Wurundjeri calendar of seasons, on whose land much of this festival is taking place.

The Events

Midsumma Carnival

The most fabulous queer-day-out

Don’t miss Melbourne’s most famous family-friendly community day that kicks off summer’s beloved three-week Midsumma Festival season.

Midsumma Carnival will serve-up a tasting plate of performances and personalities from the festival program – in one giant showcase – with something for everyone.

Check out sports displays, get pooch-smooched at the famous Dog Show, or test out your favourite songs in the Lipsync Limelight competition.

Food trucks, bars and stalls galore, all top-full of treats to keep you hydrated, fed and in the community spirit. There’ll be an under 18s area, a rest zone, and Midsumma Carnival’s first-ever tactile installation by Slow Art Collective in collaboration with Description Victoria – for those that want to feel the community vibe across all of their senses.

Venue: Alexandra Gardens St Kilda Rd Melbourne

Pride March

Celebrate You

Gather your friends and allies together as we take to St Kilda’s Fitzroy Street, to rejoice in our diversity and achievements, at Victoria’s annual queer march.

Mobilise against marginalisation with Midsumma Festival, in this march of celebration and solidarity, as we unfurl our flags, flock up and keep fighting.

In 1996, more than 11,000 people swelled onto the streets to rally in part against the infamous Tasty Nightclub raids. 23 years later, we’re still marching stronger and prouder than ever.

Midsumma Pride March Awards, intended to encourage a bright presence from participants, and Post Pride celebrations at Catani Gardens will round off the day.

Venue: Fitzroy St, St Kilda
Post-Pride Celebrations, Catani Gardens St Kilda

Date: Sun 28 Jan

Time: 2pm march start
7pm post-Pride celebrations close

Tickets: FREE

Access: Wheelchair Access | Auslan interpreted | Family friendly | Food available | Bar

Participate: Participants in the March must register via midsumma.org.au by 4 Dec 2017

Midsumma Horizon

Evoking queer history at the most contemporary of art-parties

Travel to the past, celebrate the future and make history on the closing weekend of Midsumma Festival.

Full of performance and provocation, DJs, art and other displays, Midsumma Horizon will be presented at the iconic State Library Victoria.

Come dressed if you like as your most beloved queer figure from history. With prizes on offer for the best dressed amongst you, it’s not a requirement of entry but it is a damned good way to make an entrance.
You’ll have a chance to make history, with portraits of revellers taken throughout the night zipped-up, time-locked and archived for posterity.

With paying bars to whet your whistle, converse and cavort with our communities’ culture-makers amongst the annals of knowledge at this splendid Melbourne venue.

Venue: State Library Victoria, 328 Swanston St, Melbourne

Midsumma Presents

Midsumma Presents is where we get our hands dirty

This is Midsumma’s new producing arm of the festival, where we collaborate with some of Victoria’s most outstanding artists and cultural institutions. It’s intersectional, it’s vibrant and it brings people together.

You’ll see a survey of queer contemporary art in the Midsumma Australia Post Art Prize, a radical decolonisation of sexuality and gender in Incinerator Gallery’s Black Magic, a deep dive into queer history with WE ARE HERE at State Library Victoria, powerful snapshot of senior men and expunged crimes of same- sex intimacy in Never a Crime and the new frontier of queer arts practice with QueerTech.io.

Further along in this guide, check out a showcase of young talent with Minus18 at the Midsumma Youth Spectacular, the hottest new plays with Gasworks at Playtime Staged Readings, and two incredible Arts Centre Melbourne collaborations bringing you laughs with the Midsumma Comedy Extravaganza and a romping cabaret celebration of queer-and-trans- people-of-colour in The Cocoa Butter Club: Midsumma Special and a creative space for diverse families with Midsumma at ArtPlay: Our Time to Shine!

And don’t miss the special series of talks events in the Midsumma Festival Bar at Bombini Buzz at Southbank – Queers and Our Hidden Histories, Eat Me: Queers, Food and Intimacy, and Bent Lines: Designing a Queer City with Open House Melbourne.

Midsumma Hub Venues

For the 2018 Midsumma Festival, we are delighted to offer the following five Hub Venues. These venues provide a balanced selection of events to help enrich your Midsumma Festival experience.

Arts Centre Melbourne Hub

From the best of the Ireland’s performance-party scene to an icon of screen and stage, Arts Centre Melbourne has assembled a 2018 line-up not to be missed. And this year they have teamed up with Midsumma Festival to co-produce two amazing events: one to send you into fits of laughter with the best of queer comedy and the other a celebration of queer people of colour.

Venue: Arts Centre Melbourne, 100 St Kilda Rd, Melbourne

Midsumma Festival’s Official Bar Bombini Buzz

Midsumma Festival is taking over Arts Centre Melbourne’s Bombini Buzz for the official festival bar. Join us on the river’s edge beside Hamer Hall for a festival-long dynamic program of DJs,talks, exclusive guest artists and late-night queer shindigs. Imbibe special Midsumma cocktails, meet friends, or strut your stuff on the promenade out front, nearly every night of the festival.
John Barrowman in Concert

“Anything Goes” at a John Barrowman concert

Spend an intimate evening of songs, stories and laughter with the incomparable John Barrowman. Famous for his role on BBC’s Doctor Who, John’s character was so popular he was given his own spin-off, Torchwood. On stage, John has starred in many West End musicals and will dazzle with his boundless energy and incredible voice. Join this gay icon for a raucous repertoire of beloved classics (with a few surprises in between).

Growing up LGBTQIA+: what has changed since the 1990s?

This interactive panel discussion features speakers from Minus18 and researchers (including Rob Cover, Daniel Marshall and Mary Lou Rasmussen) talking about how growing up LGBTQIA+ has changed over time in Australia. What was it like to be a queer young person growing up in the 1990s, and what is it like to be a queer young person growing up today?

Rapid Fire

Twelve writers, six minutes each

Rapid Fire is the Hare Hole’s longest running spoken word event and one of its most popular. Its recipe is simple: give twelve writers six minutes each to read, draw the order from a hat and ensure that merciless technicians are on hand to turn off the microphone if they go over time.

Regan Lynch Does It In Public

Regan Lynch is young, dumb and full of comedy in this pageant of sexed-up idiocy. Describe by Aussie Theatre as “larger-than-life, high camp, high fidelity and even higher energy”, by AbsoluteTheatre as “exceptionally good” and by his Dad as “not sh*t”, Regan’s ready to blow you (and your socks) off with an hour of punk guitar, ukulele, burlesque and anti-retrovirals.

Some Strings Attached

A string of consciousness by Mikey J White

NSA? There’s no such string! We all have strings attached. Strings connect us – to community, to culture, to identity, to each other. Each string tells a story. Each string defines us. Stringing together surreal theatre, music, puppetry, burlesque, performance art and comedy, Mikey J White (Animal, Midsumma Festival 2017) investigates the ties we form and our interconnectivity. How long is a piece of string?

The Cabin

You'll have a “gay” old time in The Cabin!

After another failed relationship, grasping at straws and two tear-soaked romantic holiday tickets, David does what any sane, newly single person in a state of emotional turmoil doesn’t do: decides to go on the holiday anyway, by himself. Alone in a cabin with only his Agatha Christie novels and Aldi groceries for company, David looks back at his life and has a good old laugh at it.

Inside / Out

An Efavirenz Dream

Inside / Out, an installation produced by Sebastian Zagarella was developed in response to his own sero-conversion; and as a result of what Zagarella says is the continuing absence of dialogue on what it means to be HIV+.

First shown in Sydney in 2015, the installation has since been travelling, most recently invited to show alongside the QUILTS at the Sydney Powerhouse Museum as part of World AIDS Day in 2016.

Venue: Chapel Off Chapel Mezzanine, 12 Little Chapel St Prahran

Date: 17 Jan – 3 Feb

Inside / Out: Roundtable Conversation

There is no longer shame in living with HIV

– is there?

The installation titled Inside / Out, produced by Sebastian Zagarella in 2015, in response to his own sero-conversion, was most recently invited to show alongside the Quilts at Sydney’s Powerhouse Museum. This event is an accompanying forum to the exhibition. It will be an opportunity to speak with the artist and a panel of community advocates, health practitioners and educators who are all engaged intimately with the virus.

Through the Night

Featuring the work of Caio Fernando Abreu

Ed Moreno is a poet, translator, and long-term HIV survivor who writes about how we negotiate the fractures HIV created in our universe. Through the Night is a spoken word performance which explores how we find our way through the darkest of nights. The dark holds many unusual, fragmented, and brilliant secrets. A hot midsumma night is no exception.

Water Body

The raw power and seductive beauty of drenched aerial acrobats.

A portrait series capturing the visual effects of water on the body. Aerialists have an immense respect of the dangers involved working high above the ground, using their unique movement qualities to dance beautifully in the air. The shock of the cold water created a sense of reverence and surrender once fully immersed in the downpour.

We Were There

A verbatim theatre project: Australian stories by Australian women

This piece explores the lives and untold stories of the sisters, mothers, wives, friends, volunteers and medical professionals who cared for those living with HIV & AIDS in the 80s and 90s, and also those living with the virus today. With humour and heart, this project celebrates the efforts and sacrifices of these women and remembers those left behind.

La Mama Hub

Valued by artists and audiences alike, La Mama is treasured for supporting challenging new work. Past meets the present this Midsumma as La Mama presents works including new queer classical music; a twisted take on a Shakespearian favourite; and let’s just see what Nonna is likely to dish up as she grapples with tradition in a fast changing world.

Venue 2: La Mama Courthouse, 349 Drummond St, Carlton
Can’t be Tamed

Let’s get one thing straight(ish): this isn’t a cabaret or f*cking sing-a-long. This anti-biography of the artist once known as Hannah Montana is a surreal unbecoming of age that starts with molly and ends deep in the Miley mindverse. A greened-out DnM on the nature of ‘who the hell am I?’ with Miley Cyrus as your spirit guide.

Denuded

A Domino Project presented by Phillip Adams BalletLab

Denuded is about breathing, the body and, most importantly, contact with the audience. Here, he examines the physicality of this subject in a solo transformation ritual. The visible becomes a site for investigating the invisible through the transformation of physicality guided by breath. Denuded opens up spaces to be filled with irrationality we all carry within us. Created and performed by Bruno Isaković (Croatia).

Denuded – Workshop

A three-day workshop for dancers and performance-makers with Bruno Isaković (Croatia).
During the workshop participants immerse in deep study of their breath, physical tension and its effect on body alignment. The interconnected structure of breath and body tension/release permeates the body in each moment. When we are scared or nervous, when we are relaxed or sleeping, excited or sensual, the breathing reflects our state and defines the way we are in our bodies.

Visual Arts

A red wine cheers to the intimacies of industry

Feelings we experience in relation to our urban environment

The exhibition digs deep into the rich prevails, futurism in popular media fails to histories of human involvement with industrial environments in the West, acknowledging and bringing to the forefront marginalised histories. A romantic viewing of the industry and systems that go into constructing the city, Alisha Abate's sculptural practice concerns how the living body inhabits space and the reciprocal relationship of how and why working spaces are constructed.

Blak- Queer Futurism

Indigenous and QTIPoC contributions in popular media

We live in a world that is highly influenced by black and queer cultures. Although this prevails, futurism in popular media fails to reflect a near future where black or queer people are main protagonists, central to the revolution or progression of humanity, and the protection of our environment.

CHINTZ
A state of ambiguous non-conformity
Transposed onto the articulate bodies of dancers, and parallel with Australia’s burgeoning queer diversity, CHINTZ offers subjects equivocal in gender and motive. Maximilian and Tatjana Plit’s photographic collaboration explores notions of imprecise interpretation and value. Dancers Geoffrey Watson, Milo Hyde and James Andrews are caught within the images in a heightened domestic entanglement.

Cry: Jessi Lewis
A visual collaboration between portraiture and performance
This is an exhibition that transgresses the roles of sexuality, whilst challenging the notions of masculinity. “Stripped of armour to a transparent vulnerability. Individuals in private pain – shared in unexpected spaces. In a poetic silence, these emotions swell, filling up the space between you and I. With each tear we shed, a new layer does emerge. Here we remain, transfixed in a state of flux, translucent beings, waiting and wanting of more.” Jessi Lewis

Stuart Black: Passing Trucks

Works by Stuart Black from 1990 – 1993

The late Stuart Black’s art is intrinsically linked to homosexuality and of a time when gay people were inventing themselves. Passing Trucks looks at his works created while living in his penthouse in St Kilda. Black noticed trucks filled with animal carcasses speeding toward the meat works. Not visible from the street, his “god’s eye” view inspired what was to be his last major series.

Transforming Family Connections: The ‘They’ Thing

Family interactions form the first map we have to make sense of who we are, and how we can expect to be received by the world. These maps are often corrupted by misinformation, fear and cis-hetero-centric notions of happiness. Through intra and inter-personal dialogues, The ‘They’ Thing depicts the impasses in many family-of-origin stories and narratives that often emerge when a person’s existence resists familiar paradigms of gender.

We asked writer Adolfo Aranjuez to give us his thoughts on what it means to be a queer person of colour, to complement a list of Midsumma events with a Queer-and-Trans-People-of-Colour and Queer First Nations focus.

In the Spotlight by Adolfo Aranjuez

When the lesbian African-American poet Audre Lorde said, ‘Art is not living [but] the use of living,’ in a 1982 interview, what she highlighted was the relationship between real and represented, daily life and depictions of it – in her case, as a queer woman and a person of colour.

Nowhere is this dynamic more pronounced than in the everyday travails of those who inhabit the margins. Because of the hand we’ve been dealt, the lives of queer people, people of colour and especially people at the intersections of these identities are characterised by performance and presentation: we can’t just switch off.

We’re compelled to play the right personas for the circumstances in which we find ourselves – palatable one moment, pushing boundaries the next. We have to put on a brave face when struggling against bigotry and exclusion, when letting slide yet another bite of microaggression. We’re forced to learn to ‘pass’ depending on the company we keep, to pass up opportunities that are tinged with tokenism, to pass over political talk lest we be deemed too inflammatory and become tarnished with the ‘bad minority’ brush.

We queer people and people of colour often feel like we’re never enough – as citizens, as creatives, as humans – while simultaneously feeling like we’ve had enough of being cast aside as errant, as deviant, as lesser and in need of catching up.

But art is a tool for empowerment – and on stage, on the page, on the canvas, we’re able to put our powers of portrayal to good use. Our lives may forever be under scrutiny from those who wish to sideline or subdue us, but a flipside of being no stranger to the spotlight is the ability to reclaim attention and seize power back.
Throughout history, we’ve taken our alterity and adversity, and used it as fuel to create: from blues, jazz and disco, to vogue, drag and dancehall; rap and reggae, butoh and burlesque; and, closer to home, the creations of performers for The Cocoa Butter Club and of visual artist Peter Waples-Crowe, whose work appears in two Midsumma Festival exhibitions in 2018.

Otherness is the underground. Otherness is understanding how our difference can be weaponised to challenge prejudice and chip away at the structures that subjugate us. In life, we may – for now – occupy the peripheries, but art lets us activate our most badass selves and take centre stage.

Adolfo Aranjuez is the editor-in-chief of Archer, the world’s most inclusive sexuality and gender magazine and one of our most recent Midsumma media partners. Adolfo also writes nonfiction and poetry, and appears at festivals and arts events to speak about race, queer and mental-health issues. Additionally, he is an emerging dancer and participant in our Midsumma Futures program.

A Focus on Transgender and Gender Non-Binary Identity

Q&A with Genesis Breyer P-Orridge

Genesis P-Orridge is a non-binary musician, poet and performance artist based in New York City. Jess Jones is a journalist with Star Observer, based in Brisbane and has a background in medical writing. A trans man, Jess’ special interests include gender as well as entertainment and travel.
We asked Jess to catch up with Genesis ahead of their upcoming appearance at Midsumma Festival, to complement a list of Midsumma events we have put together with a gender non-binary or transgender slant.

Jess: What does gender mean to you?

Genesis: I’m a pandrogyne, a positive androgyne. Trans is the symbol of the ultimate evolution of our species. It should be that we all can be whoever and whatever we want to be, and that is the ultimate expression of spiritual knowledge, the process of becoming.

Jess: What is being a non-binary or trans person in the US like?

Genesis: For me, I’m like a mythical creature, and I’ve got my protective bubble around me. The ones that are really at risk are all the young kids, the ones that are thrown out of home. There’s been an uptick in the murder of trans women, and there’s been a growth of ignorance.

Last year we went on a road trip to Tennessee in the South. While we were driving around, we would stop at gas stations, and every single one had a hand-written note on the toilet that said ‘real women only in here’. That was before the election, and that was really scary.

Nobody, including me, realised how deep-rooted the prejudice and the racial hatred and the fake-Christian extremism really was under the surface down in the South still. I feel one of my responsibilities, having a voice, is to speak up and say what I think is wrong and why.

Jess: What do you see happening with LGBTQIA+ rights right now?

Genesis: Over here they’re trying to roll the calendar back and pretend it’s the 1950s again. It’s very dangerous.

In times of darkness, the best strategy is to use the opposite of what they’re using. If they’re being angry and vicious and violent, we have to be kind and gentle and loving. Most of all we have to be compassionate. If we do that, we really can change it.

Jess: Are you looking forward to coming back to Australia?

Genesis: Oh yes. For people in Europe or the US, it’s like saying you’re going to go to Mars. Going to Australia is as unusual as going to another planet, and you’ve got to admit Australia is like another planet when you get there, with strange alien creatures and red soil and the oldest living civilisation on the planet. You’ve got a lot going for you, and we’re happy to come back.

Genesis will be performing with Edley ODowd Fri 2 Feb and has an accompanying exhibition Loyalty Does Not End With Death from 1 Feb at Substation.

Nic Holas Navigates Masculinity

We have put together a list of events to highlight just a few of the male-identifying works within this program. Nic Holas is a writer, HIV/queer activist, and co-founder of The Institute of Many (TIM). We asked Nic to give us his thoughts on male identity.

Maleness. It's a term that elicits a variety of responses, and in the (thankfully) increasingly intersectional LGBTQIA+ communities, some may think the days of men-only spaces/male-centric events are numbered.

It's a timely discussion, and one we need to be having. Rooted (pun intended) in a historical need for safe, confidential spaces for same-sex attracted men to fraternise, we now find ourselves part of a larger conversation on toxic masculinity, oppression policing, and identity politics.

When we are surrounded by, and dominated by, heterosexual, cosgendered examples of maleness at its worst, how do we as LGBTQIA+ communities respond? Our ongoing queering of masculinity is vital.

From masc-drag parties and exhibitions to resplendently camp cabarets that star song-and-dance confirmed bachelors, this year's Midsumma program features both celebrations and interrogation of maleness.

The time-honoured tradition of blokes waving their bums about is certainly queered by the ever-popular Midsumma Mooning party. Splattered on gallery walls, exhibitions by and featuring (but not just for) male identifying people return, including the hyper-masc Company of Men, with its glossy photos printed on what may be pure testosterone. Meanwhile, onstage queer cabarets and performances remind us of the long, unbroken line of storytelling that has served to educate and entertain us for generations.

What is it all for though? Is there still room for the backs-to-the-wall boys club in the ever-changing world of queer identity? Benefitting as we do from our identifiable maleness, often brandishing bigger megaphones than our fellow queer siblings, we men have an honour-bound duty to take them with us as we all charge forward towards genuine equality. In the post-postal survey world, it be a marriage of the old and new that helps take us forward.

We still need to take a long, hard look at maleness.

Fortunately, queer men are quite good at copping an eyeful.

Razer Speaking ‘As A Woman’

We have put together a list of events to highlight female-identifying works within this program. To complement the exercise, we asked Helen Razer to give us her thoughts on what it means to her to be female-identifying. It clearly wasn’t a simple question. But neither is the subject of identity.

A while back, I was speaking to the highly regarded, deeply defiant Australian artist Richard Bell. A controversial Bell piece had just taken out a major prize for Aboriginal art, and so, like a predictable honky dimwit, I asked him in a media interview what it meant to be Aboriginal.

Richard, who for some reason still talks to me, said something like, “Do I have to be Aboriginal all the freaking time?” Which is just the sort of destabilising question he poses with his work. Identity does not define a person, even to themselves, in every instant. Even if the kind of identity we ended up with is one that society urges us not to forget, we can perhaps un-remember that we are black, brown, disabled, queer or what-have-you.

I do not, for example, pay my bills As A Woman. Of course, my prescribed back at feminist school. Honestly, I have a great deal of patience for such explanations of life As A Woman, and my first ever living-philosopher crush was on the still great, still corporeal Australian Liz Grosz.

Still. You know. I can't say I locate embodied traces of the feminine on myself while soaking rice. I even argue and I believe this identity thing just sometimes falls away. Not, perhaps, to the person with whom I am angrily conversing. They may implicitly see me As A Woman, just as I may see them for their most evident identity category. Not saying I am “above all that” or some such pure fib. I am just saying, as Bell reminded me to, that sometimes we forget the identities that demand to be donned by us, and can get a bit shitty if suddenly reminded.

And, you know. Just between you, me and the Empowering Joy of Being a Queer Woman workshop, I think it is okay, even healthy, to occasionally forget. Or, at the very least in feminist conversations, talking about something else but our Lived Female Experience for a change.

I propose, and not even As A Woman, that we all try out an identity non-awareness week every year. No art As A Woman, no memoir, no personal-is-political anecdotes remembering what it is to be a lady. Remembering, instead, that there is a fleeting power we hold to forget.

Helen Razer is a writer and was a broadcaster. She lives in Melbourne and has not reproduced.

My First Ball

By Ed Moreno
Perhaps her first real partner was the cab.

—Katherine Mansfield, “Her First Ball”

Exactly when the ball began I would find it hard to say.

Perhaps my first real partner was the magazine I picked up which read G.R.I.D. Perhaps my first real partner was that article in which I recognised myself.

Perhaps my first real partners were all-of-those-men-covered-in-cutaneous-lesions.

Each of these men – the article read – had had thousands of sexual partners which translated into innumerable sex acts. The article broke these figures down.

Perhaps my first real partners were these figures: sex acts per week, per night, per hour. How many sex acts are occurring now? I jumped. I couldn’t move.

Perhaps my first real partner was desire.

Perhaps I realised then that I wouldn’t always resist my desire. Perhaps my first real partner was desire.

Exactly when the ball began I would find it hard to say.

The ball began in a booth in the Mission, video flicker urging us on The ball began with a kiss in the Castro, rainbow flag flapping

The ball began in the library, a trailer park, Brompton Cemetery under the trees

The ball began in October: I’d been expecting it, I didn’t expect it. He called me over. Perhaps he was my first real partner. I don’t remember his name.

The ball began with diagnosis: I remember bare branches, the oncoming winter.
Exactly when the ball began I would find it hard to say. At diagnosis, they gave me five years. After diagnosis, the ball moved me to Miami, London, Sydney. Before diagnosis, the ball.

After diagnosis, the ball.

Perhaps my first real partner was Stephen. Perhaps my first real partner was Louis. Perhaps my first real partner was Michael. Perhaps my first real partner was Jay.

Perhaps my first real partners have all gone.

Exactly when the ball began I would find it hard to say. Five years after diagnosis, ritonavir.

Perhaps my first real partner was ritonavir. Perhaps my first real partners have all gone. Perhaps I will live forever.

Perhaps we'll all live forever.

Perhaps my first real partner was atripla. Perhaps my first real partner was truvada. Perhaps we'll all live forever. Exactly when the ball began I would find it hard to say. Perhaps my first real partner was desire.

Perhaps my first real partner is how come I'm still here? Perhaps my first real partner is love.

Perhaps my first real partner is maybe I'll wear gloves to the Perhaps my first real partner is probably I won't.

Perhaps my first real partner is we have always had this ball. Perhaps my first real partner is I will love you at this ball.

Perhaps my first real partner is I will fuck you at this ball. Perhaps my first real partner is this fuck should last forever.

He is currently translating Brazilian writer Caio Fernando Abreu’s HIV-themed work into English for an Australian audience. We thought this poem by Ed would serve as an excellent introduction to a series of events in this program which touch on the topic of HIV. Ed is also doing a spoken word performance ‘Through the Night’ as part of Midsumma Festival 2018.
